A Conversation About School

School makes me so tired. Not just school, but homework too. No, maybe it's not school, but school is always the place where I'm so tired because I do much other stuff. It's hard to be a good person when you're tired-when I'm tired I get really self-centered and grumpy.

People say I should stop doing all the other stuff I do and pay more attention to school. If I did, I'd go crazy because I wouldn't have anything that meant anything to me any more- because school sure doesn't.

My world at school really frustrates me- it's the hardest place I know of to live in. There's almost nothing there that really matters to me. There's nothing that touches me enough to make me want to do it. On top of this, it's supposed to be the center of my life. I'm called a student; therefore, I suppose life at school should mean something to me, but it doesn't.

There's nothing I ever wanted to get away from more than school. The classes, the tests, and the rules all seem so meaningless to me. I know this sounds like a lot of rhetoric, so I guess I should back it up with something.

First, I have to think of what does matter to me. My friends, mostly, and the good times we have. By good times I mean our lives together, our love for one another. These words seem awfully out-of-place, or even grown-up, but I don't think they really are. You can learn to love anything, and I wish school had more to do with that.

Anyway, the most important thing I've learned in school is how to love-- how to value people and understand them. I guess I don't care much for the academic side, because it hasn't taught me that. Actually, most of what the academic world has taught me, I either never learned or just forgot. I've had all this math and science and literature, and it doesn't seem to get me anywhere. I'm not really sure if I know any of it, because I never used it. What good is something I don't use? All the formulas I learned were good for passing tests. Is that worth it? I wish the things I have to study were worth something to me. I think we kid ourselves into thinking we're doing ourselves a favor by forcing ourselves to learn all that math and science. Some people tell me it'll help me understand the world better, but nobody's ever taught me how to understand--they've only taught me things to understand.

One of the hardest things to do in school is think! I mean really think. If I want to think of myself, or something really important to me, I'm distracted. Formulas and figures, yes-but really learning something has to wait. But ideas die if you make them wait. A friend calls it "getting sucked in." You feel like you've just come out of a hole or a cage and you must get going and do what you want to do, but you get sucked back in again and all of the enthusiasm is gone. I hate it when that happens. I feel all dead inside. I feel like I've given up something I shouldn't have.

Sometimes, too, I feel like I just can't penetrate into an idea enough. I was reading a book the other day and the words "the human condition" came up. I wanted to figure out what it was, but I couldn't think. I really wanted to know. But I couldn't grasp it. I just didn't know how. It's like picking up a musical instrument right after you've heard a really good song, and you want to play it, but you can't because you just don't know how. It's frustrating. I wonder if all the stuff I've learned is any good at all. I just wish they'd taught me how to think.

When I say "learning to think", I guess it sounds kind of ambiguous. It's hard to describe what thinking is, or what I mean by "learning to think." I tried to describe it before, but I'm still not sure I got it all across. A lot of people assume that anyone can think. I wonder. Thinking is like seeing both sides of an issue. That's hard to do.

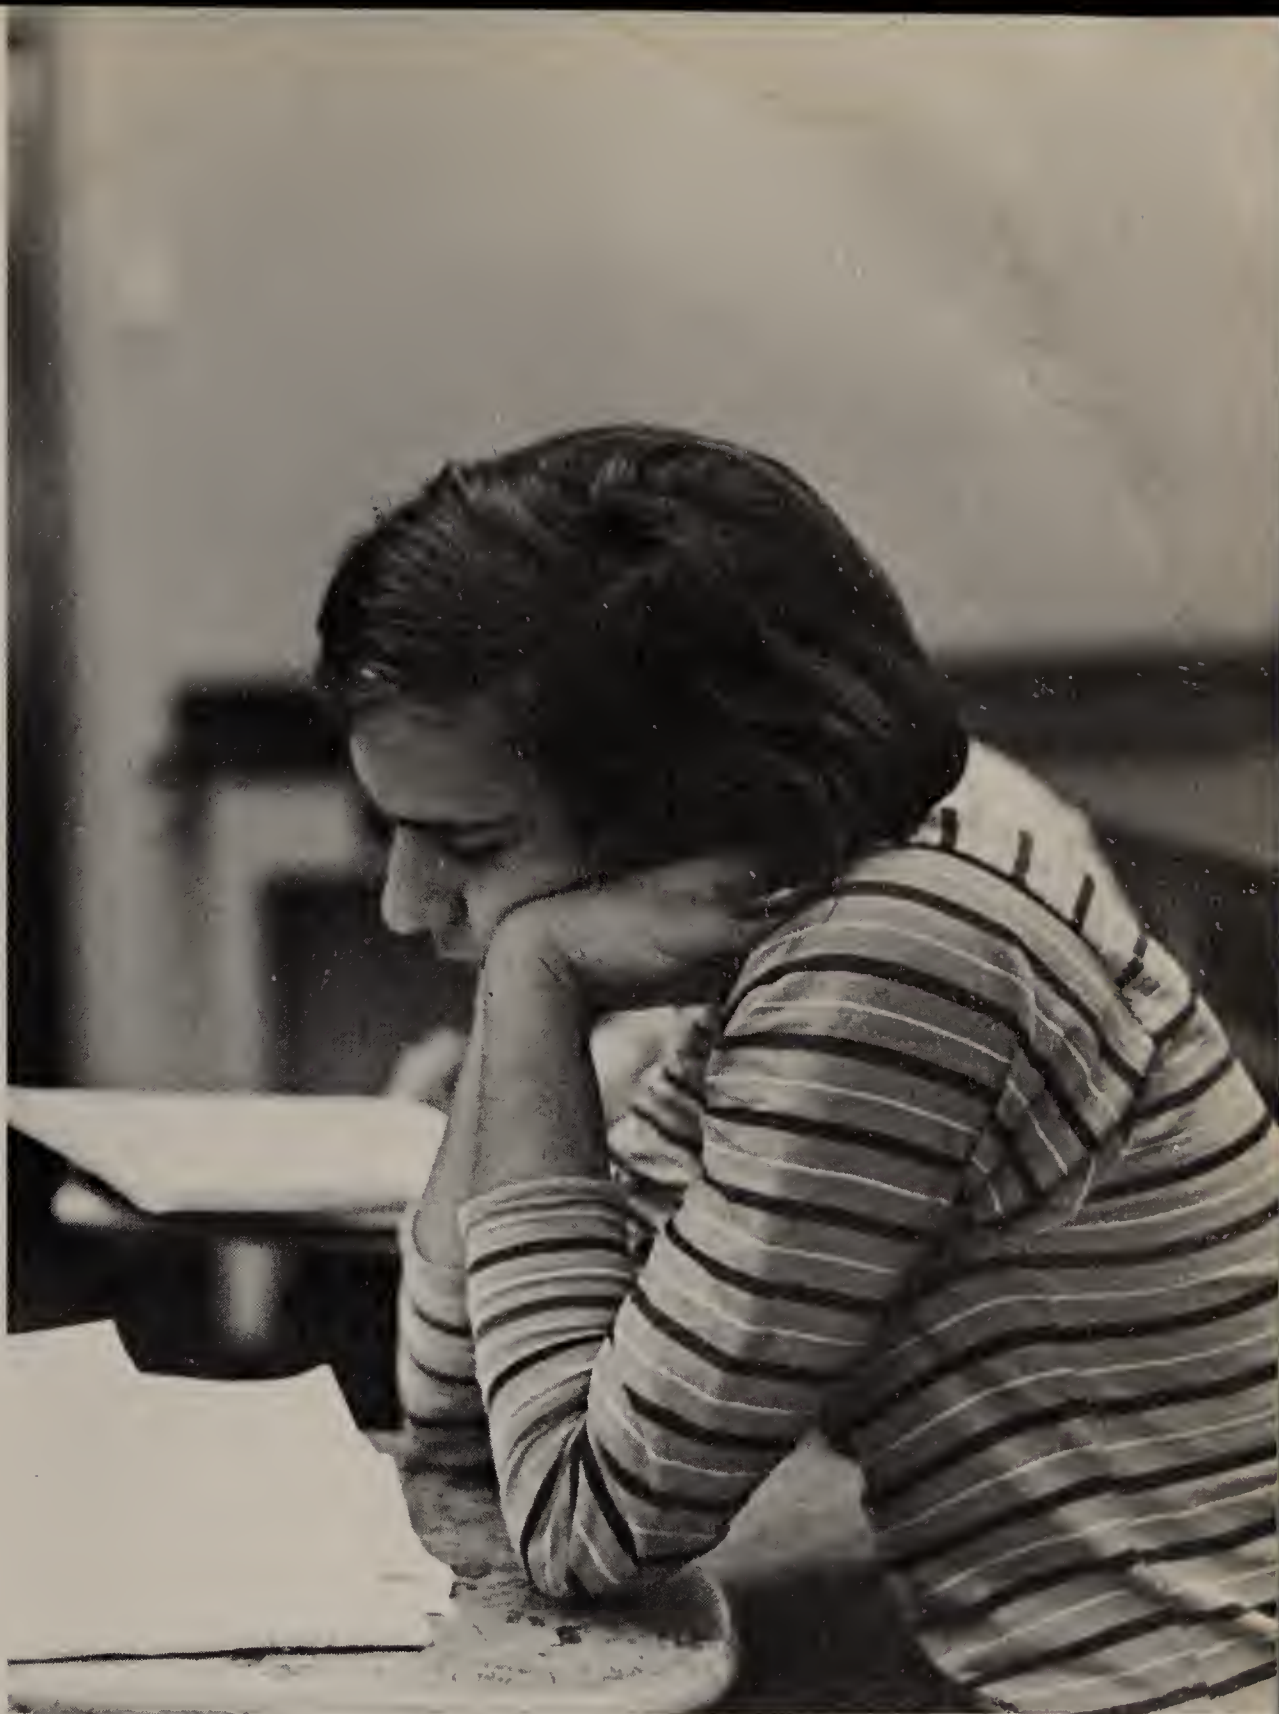

You see, when you're a kid, things can get pretty confusing. Right and wrong. Good and bad. All get confused, and you're never sure which is which. When you're unsure, both sides seem just as good or just as bad. That way, not knowing anything is good--you never have to hurt anybody's feelings by telling him he's bad. But when I say that, people say that I'm supposed to be strong and hurt him because he's bad. But who says he's bad? Maybe he's wrong, maybe he's made a mistake, but why tell him he's bad? There's nothing bad about a mistake. It's human! If you call somebody bad, he starts to believe you and thinks he can't be a good friend for anybody. Then he's in trouble. But we still call people bad anyway.

Take sex. (That sure is one thing school hasn't taught me anything about!) Suppose a guy and a girl want to make out and fool around. Whom are they hurting? Are they making a mistake? Some people think they are. I'm not really sure. But anyway, instead of just telling them that they've made a mistake, we go and tell them they're bad and evil and sinful and all of that. They get bawled out and everyone gets all flustered. Why? Why can't we just sit down calmly and try to talk to them and see whether or not they're doing the right thing? Instead of that, they get blasted for being bad, and worse than that, they believe it and start to think that they are really bad.

I brought this up because it happens so much in school. When a kid gets a problem right, he's a good boy. If he does not, he's a bad boy. Why is he bad? What's wrong with a mistake? Why does one kid have to suffer so that another kid can get a high mark?

People talk to me about love and understanding, and then I see kids worried sick because their marks aren't good, or they couldn't get a right answer. It seems as though the teacher can not take enough time to understand a kid. He only has to give the kid a mark on a piece of paper. I wish I could be friends with more of the teachers, but school work always get in the way.

I've heard that school is supposed to prepare me for life. Are the quadratic equations and the proper tenses of a French verb teaching me how to love? After all, the most important thing in life is learning to love, isn't it? If it isn't I'm sure I'll be leaving soon. My schoolwork doesn't prepare me to love and understand my friends. I've learned more about helping people from the science fiction I've read than the things I've learned in school.

I just read over the stuff I've written and I guess I'm being a little one-sided. I hate it when I do that, because it's really not giving everyone a real chance.

I just can't be all negative, for nothing is all negative.

I feel guilty because I've been screaming about how bad school is. I said before that I've learned a lot about how to love and love in high school, and that's really important to me.

All my friends have helped me a lot- and they've made a lot of school a good time. I just get mad when I see so much time wasted and so many people hurt. I think a lot of my teachers feel trapped by the situation because they do make mistakes and hurt people. I wish more of them wouldn't be so afraid to be friends with me.

Well, I guess I've said a lot of things about how much time I think I've wasted learning stuff like that. I bet you're wondering what I would like to learn. I'd like to learn how to be your friend, you whoever you are, reading this. I'd like to know how to defeat all the fears that keep me from knowing and trusting you. Whoever you are, I don't even know you, but I think you must be a beautiful person. If I ever meet you, and I'm foolish enough not to like you, it's my fault, not yours. It's just that I'm human, and I can't make it all the time. I wish I could learn how to make it and be someone's friend, more of the time, because friends are what life is for.

I guess it seems like I'm skipping all around, writing this, and getting off the subject. Really, I'm not. I'll agree it's probably confusing, but I'm just thinking about school, and writing what comes to mind. If I were to try to write the perfect paper, I'd only be able to write about certain things and I might miss something about school we've never seen before. It's good sometimes just to let yourself go, and write freely, and don't chop out anything because all we chop out is part of us too, and part of everything- so maybe we should look at them once in a while.

Maybe there's a clue here to what's going on in the world. After all, we really do want to know what's going on, don't we? Isn't that what matters? We can't follow the rules and find out what the guy before us learned, can we? Don't we want to know new things? I like to learn new things, and if I can, why can't we share them? Maybe if we found out something new together we could be friends.

Edward

Leo

Through the years, the students of Everett High School have dedicated their yearbooks to a member of the faculty, who, to them had been an outstanding figure throughout their three years at Everett High. This year we are proud to dedicate our yearbook to a man who has been more than just an outstanding figure to us, Mr. Edward Leo. To the Class of "72" he has shown warmth, understanding, and kindness. He has portrayed to us the necessity for discipline, which has helped to make the graduating class of 1972 an outstanding figure in the history of Everett High School.

Everybody listen to me I'm your captain, I'm your captain.

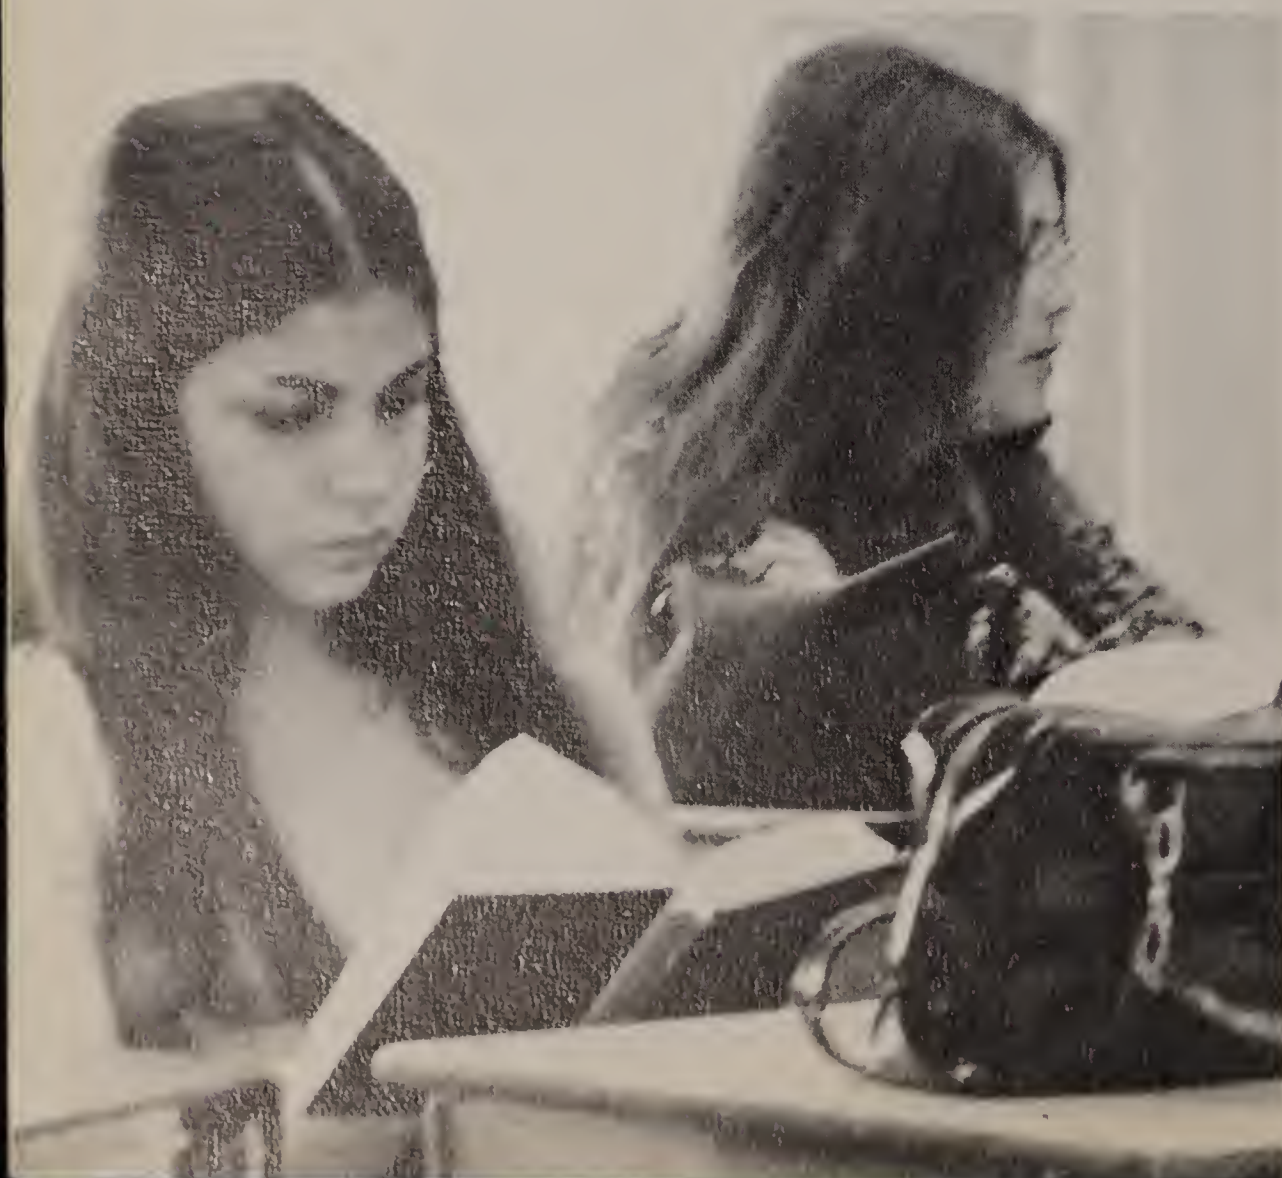

Mr. Leo has shown to us, contrary to belief, that students are able to actually talk with members of the faculty. He has advised us, when requested, about our attitudes towards school, our family life, and he has even given ideas to members of the football team. To sum up our feelings for Mr. Leo, let us only say that to this year's graduating class of "72" he's been "ALL RIGHT"!.

We get by with a little help from our friends.

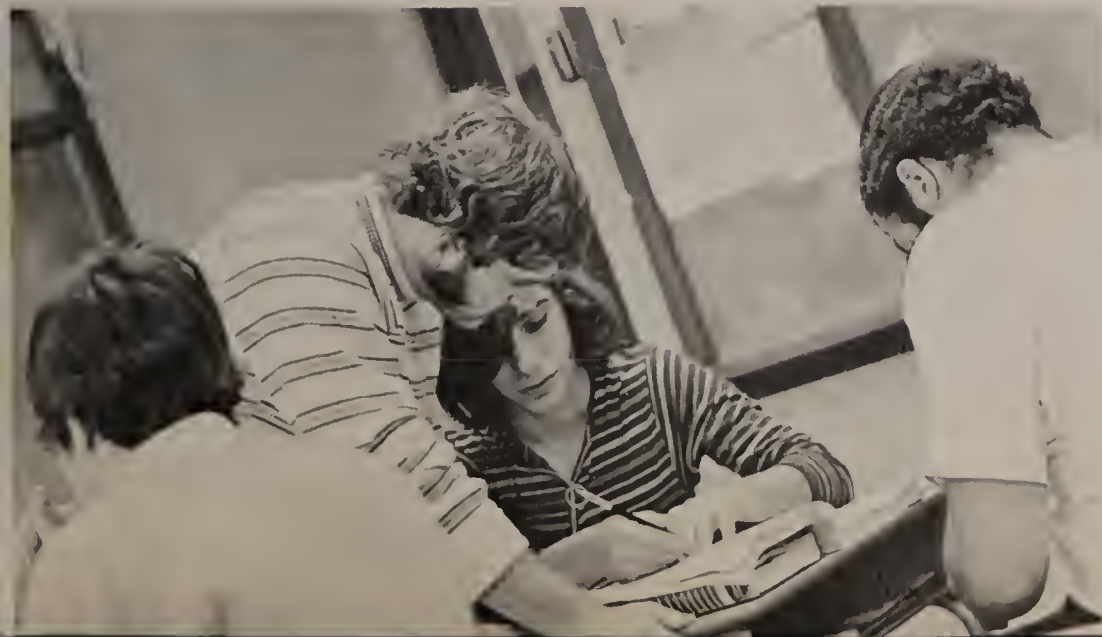

Can you hear and do you care and can't you see we must be free to teach our children what you believe in and make a world that we can believe in. (Nash)

Get your sneakers on and join the fun.

Two and Two make four they never make five, and as long as we know it we all can survive.

It's been a long time comin' it's goin to be a long time gone. But you know, the darkest hour, is always just before dawn and it appears to be a long time such a long long, long time before the dawn. (Crosby)

Wisdom is something we cannot be born with, it is acquired. Our teachers, throughout the twelve years of school, have left within us a piece of their wisdom. For this we thank them.

Teacher of the year

There are many kinds of teachers, each with his own style of teaching. One might consider a good teacher as being a teacher who uses a lot of big words and speaks in what sometimes seems to be a foreign language. Others might consider a good teacher as being one who gives everybody in his classes an "A". But a good teacher is nothing more than a true teacher. Not just someone who teaches in the everyday manner of his daily planbook, but one who extends his abilities beyond the classroom and into the actual lives of his students.

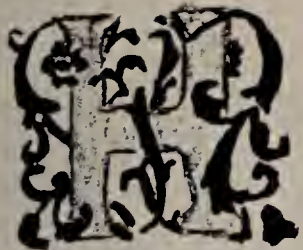

John Hudson

He is an interested teacher; interested in his work and the people with whom he comes in contact during his work. For how can a student find a teacher interesting if the teacher himself is not interested in what he is doing? Such a true teacher is John Hudson. He is a man who does not confine his work to the limitations of his classroom walls but involves himself with the entire school and all related areas. In addition to teaching classes in Earth Science and Biology, he is currently the advisor to the school newspaper and the advisor to the yearbook. He is an individual without whose cooperation this book might not have yet been published.

In association with the Greater Boston Association for Retarded Children, a group of concerned Everett High School students, donated time each week to attend special work sessions with the Retarded children in the Everett area. Dismissed from school, the students would attend these sessions at the Glendale Congregational Church, to talk, work, and many times just to be a friend to someone in need of friendship. Merely to let these children know that people care about them, these students participated in the program: James Driscoll, George Sharis, Steve Anzalone, Steve Finos, Peter Smith, and John Capra.

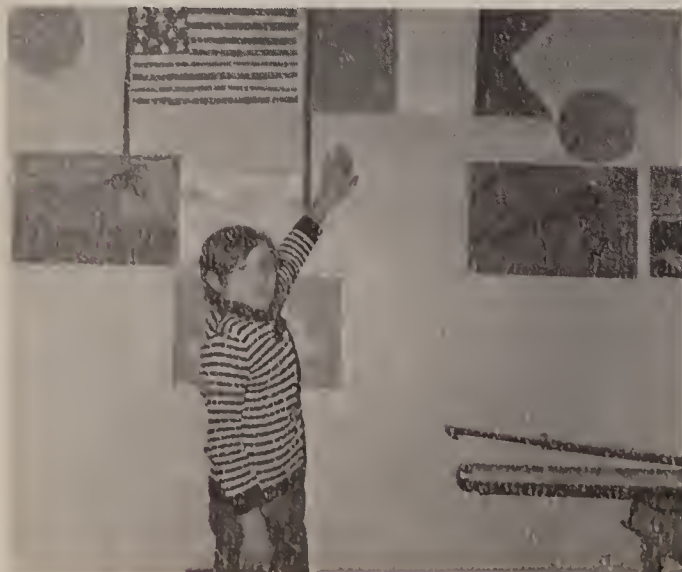

DEVENS SCHOOL PROJECT

Under the guidance of Mr. Victor DeRubis, head of the Foreign Language Department at Everett High School, a group of high school students participated in an organization entitled "Devens School Project".

Emphasizing on Italian, the students engaged in this project are helping to alleviate the problem of the language barrier that exists with the increase of non-english speaking children entering the Everett school system.

Involved in the project are: Valerie Panarese, Debbie Pizzano, Claudia Violette, Debbie Capua, Christine Markevich, Ronald Quarterone, Robert Moore, Margaret Welsh, Angela Iamelli, Salvatore Sorriento, Robert Baker, Tinna Nanni, Diane Auger, Margaret Jeddrey, Linda Goodine, Anne Dolan, Linda Bellofatto, and Sharon Bookman.

E. H. S. 1971-72 CHESS TEAM

This year's chess team had one of its better seasons, finishing up with a 12-8 record for the year. A key factor in their excellent record was the superb play of Captain Bob Slater, and that of Co-captain Peter Moran. Moran was also voted Most Valuable player for the 71-72 season by his teammates.

Advisor for this year's chess team was Mr. Foley, a member of the E. H. S. faculty. Last year's members, coached by Mr. Steve Daisy, showed what they learned, and have proven to be a credit to the Class of "72".

This year's Spanish Club had one of the widest varieties of activities ever. Not only did they sell candy to raise money for the Globe and Hereald Santas, but they held a special Christmas party for the elderly women at the Appleton Nursing Home.

This year for the first time, due mainly to the efforts of Mr. James Marino and Miss Mary Dorn, along with the other 58 who participated in this event, a group from Everett made a trip to Spain during the April vacation.

To close out the year, the Spanish Club will hold its annual banquet on June 2, at which all members will receive praise and recognition for the fine work they had done during their membership to the Spanish Club.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

The Everett High School Chapter of the National Honor Society was formed on 1969. Students may become candidates for membership at the end of the second quarter of their junior year if they have maintained a scholastic average of 3.5 for their first year and a half of high school. If they are not eligible for membership at this time, they may be considered for membership at the middle of their senior year if they meet this academic requirement.

During the early part of the third quarter of each year the society advisor submits to all teachers, administrators, guidance counselors, club advisors and athletic coaches, the names of those students who qualify academically for membership in the society. At this time these educators are asked to comment on those students they have worked with as to their eligibility on the basis of character, leadership, and service. A summary of these evaluations is then submitted to a faculty council consisting of the principal and four members of the faculty who have the responsibility of the election of members to the Society

Society. Any member who falls below the standards which were the basis of his election is promptly removed or warned. If during the next regular marking period of the school the member fails to meet the required standards used to qualify him for election to the society, his status is reviewed by the faculty council. A National Honor Society member must maintain the required standards in order to retain his membership. A member is allowed only one warning period. Once a member has been dismissed, he is never again eligible for membership in the National Honor Society.

The students who were elected to the National Honor Society for this year are:

The following seniors were elected to the society during their junior year: Robert Baker, Jean Bettencourt, Robert Bilotta, Carla Birarelli, Delores Capua, Michael Catanzano, Nancy Churchill, Richard Coogan, Donna Cubetus, Valerie DiCecca, Frank DiMaria, Darlene Ditter, Constance Gallant, Robin Gray, Rosalyn Gray, Barbara Haddad, Susan Hannefant, Jacalyn King, James Lyons, Christine Markevich, Mary Pothier, Jeanne Rao, Marie Saia, Karen Sheppare, Mary Shuman, Anne Stowell, Celeste, Tino, Donna Wetmore.

Who would have thought that "Women's Lib" would go all the way to Italy? Well, it has in a play put on by this year's Italian Club, entitled "La Rivolta Delle Donne". This was only one of the many activities carried out by this year's Italian Club members who include: (SEATED LEFT TO RIGHT) Ronnie Quaterone, Marie Saia, Tina Nanni, Peggy Welsh, and Linda Bellofatto. (SEATED LEFT TO RIGHT) Mrs. Margaret Mitton, Mrs. Lillian Raymond.

Mr. Alfred C. Dowd

Mr. Alfred Dowd was elected as a teacher in the Everett Public School System on September 1, 1934. As a student of Boston College, he received a Bachelor of Arts degree. He also attended Boston University, and Calvin Coolidge College, where he received his Master of Education degree.

A highly respected member of the faculty by both the students as well as his fellow teachers, Mr. Dowd was elected Head of the Social Studies Department in the Everett High School on September 18, 1958.

We, the students of Everett High School know that a great teacher and a great man will be leaving the Everett School System with the retirement of Alfred C. Dowd, on June 30, 1972.

DRAMATIC CLUB

Every year at the Everett High School the dramatic club stages one main production. This year the students staged the GRAMERCY GHOST. Although there were only twelve characters, there were over fifty people who helped to put the play on. It takes a lot of hard work to put on a production. The easiest part, needless to say is that of the performers. They study their lines and rehearse quite frequently. The technical crew has the hardest job, for they work on the cues given by the actors, and if one actor forgets one cue line, it could ruin the whole play. If the cue is missed, the crew will not be able to do its job. The lights, the music, the sound affects, the props, and the curtain all work by the cues.

In past years the Everett High School dramatic clubs have put on such productions as UTBU, THURBER CARNIVAL, HARVEY, ARSENIC AND OLD LACE, and DOBIE GILLIS.

The student Thespian Society was the society that put on small skits, and gave special help to the main productions. Thespian members are voted upon by the senior members of the club.

At the end of each year the entire Dramatic Club meets to plan a large dinner party for all members to attend and to finish off the year as a success.

anti-environmental pollution committee

ANTI ENVIRONMENTAL POLLUTION COMMITTEE

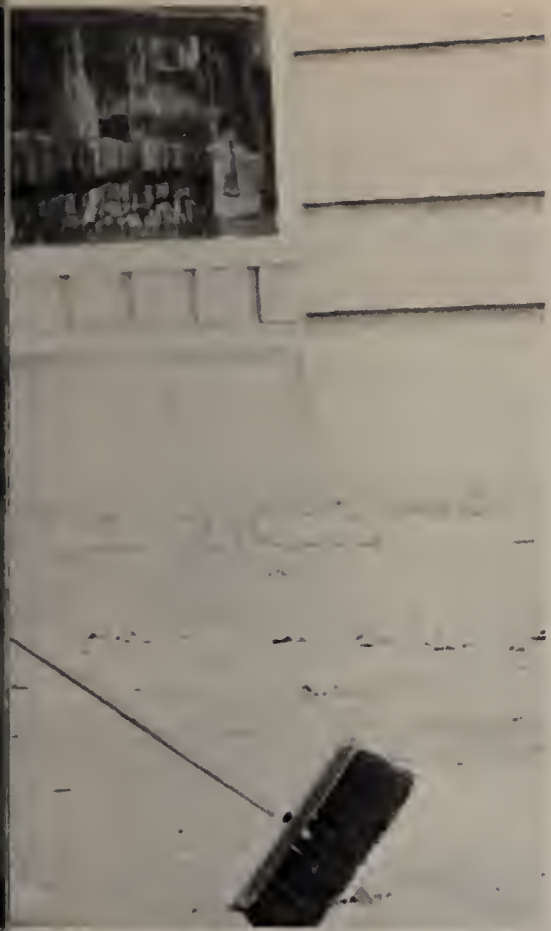

The Anti-Environmental Pollution Committee is made up of a group of concerned students. Mr. James Micarelli is the advisor to the group which began about four years ago.

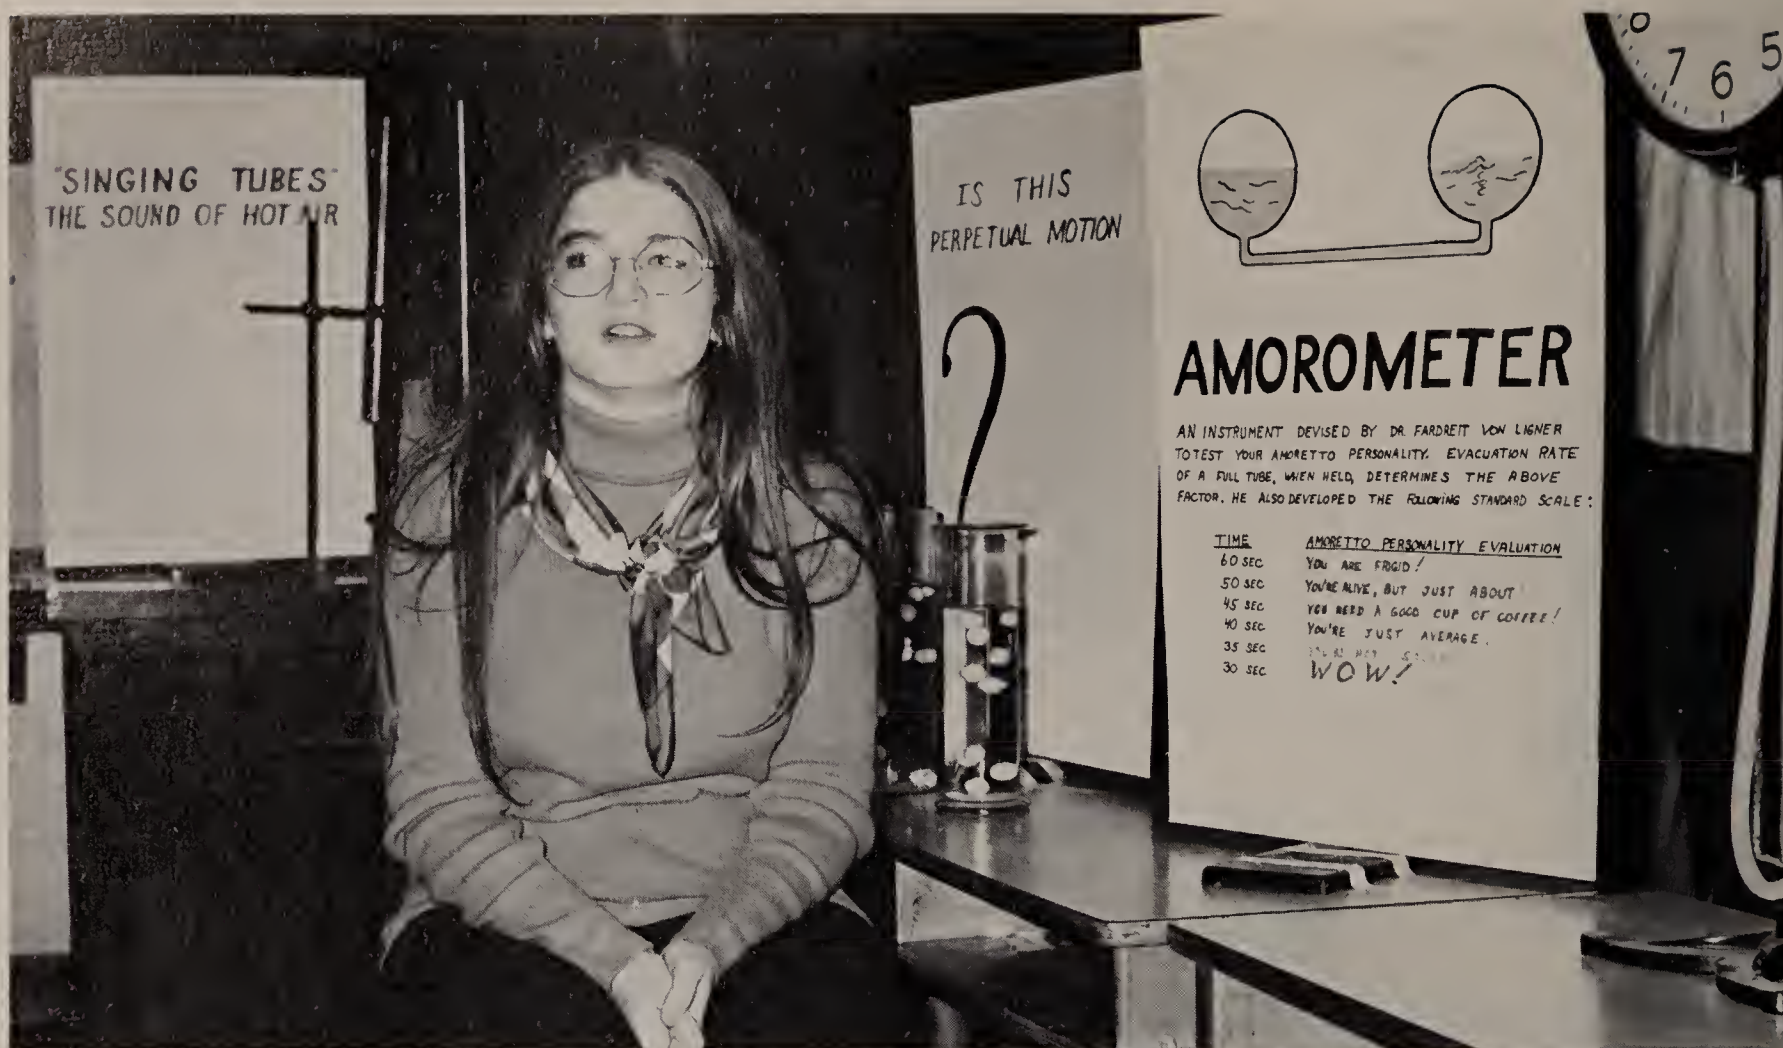

The group is now divided into sub-committees, each of which deals with a different aspect of pollution. This year the most noticed of these sub-committees was the Recycling Committee. The reason that this committee is so well known is because they organized a metal recycling drive involving the whole city. Mayor George McCarthy and Mr. Frank Riley helped to get the city trucks that the group needed. To date, the campaign has been a fantastic success, with the total amount collected exceeding five tons. The chairman of the Recycling Committee is Robert Gallant. The other members of the committee are: Jeffrey Snow, Susan Juretti, David Segal, Dennis Snook, Robert Mas- iello, Mark Meninger, Vincent V- al- sallo, Donna Ricci, Joseph Ferraro, Frank Cavignano, Susan Wetmore, Maureen Badolato, Charlene Cove, Lillian Catanzano, Janice Gilman, and Donna Wetmore.

Another active sub-committee is the Pollution Complaint Board. This group distributes complaint forms throughout the city. Citizens can fill out the forms to report any form of pollution in the city. When the mem- bers receive these complaints, they check to see if it is a valid report. Then they follow the proper channels to warn the offender. Janet Yates is the chairwoman of this committee. The other members are: Victor De- Rubis, Debbie Signoriello, Steven DelOrfano, Dinise Barbineau.

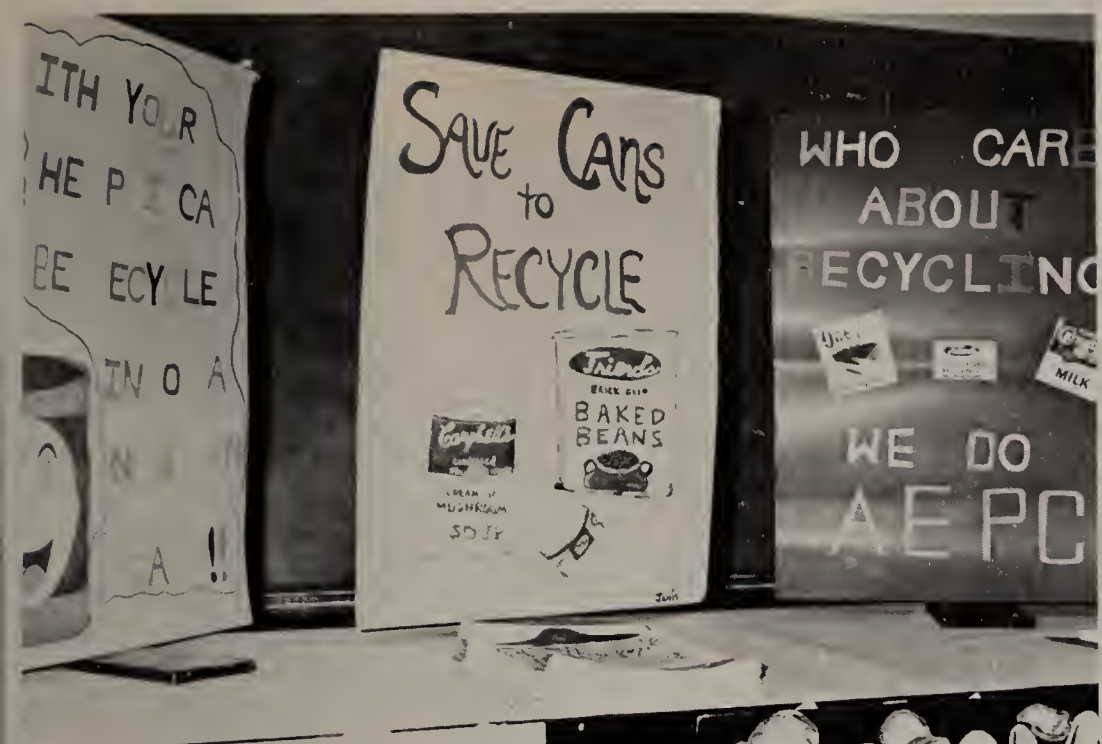

we also had a science fair.

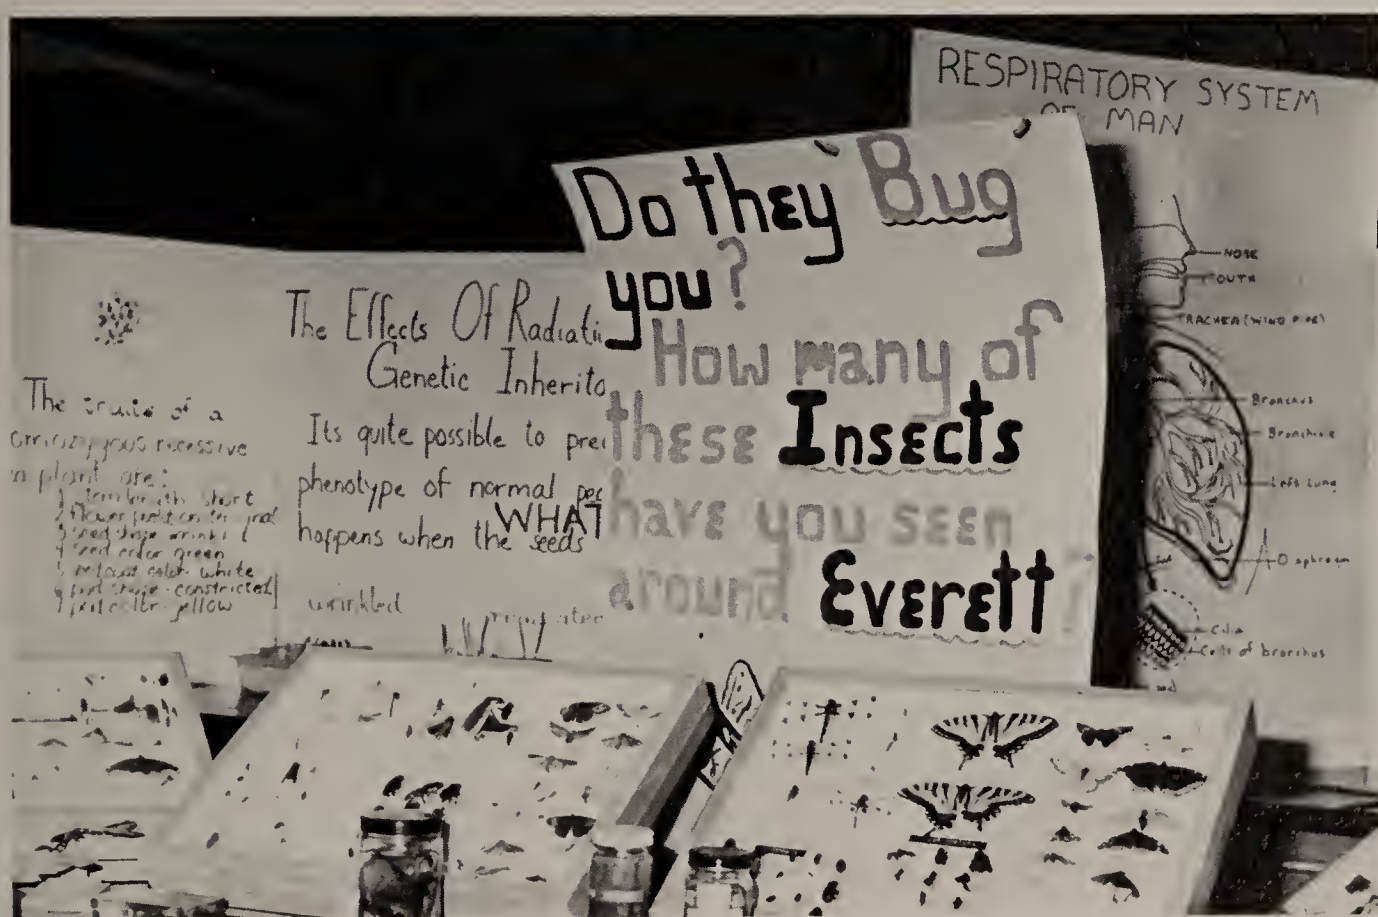

At this year's annual Science Fair, many people were on hand to see a wide display of scientific creativity exhibited by the students of Everett High School who participated in the Fair. (LEFT) First prize winners Richard Coogan and Peter Smith are congratulated by Superintendent Arigo LaTianzi and Mayor George R. McCarthy. They were awarded $100 for their "Chemical Analysis of the Malden River". Second prize went to Steve Lombardi, who was awarded $50 for his "Bacterial Analysis of the Malden River". The third prize winner was Robert Baker, who also received $50 for his "Surface Tension and Bubbles". All prize money was given by the Everett Lodge of Elks.

First prize winners Richard Coogan and Steve Smith went on to enter the State Science Fair, where they won third prize.

Another important sub-committee is our art group. These students are some of the most talented of the Everett High School. The beautiful posters and bulliten board displays around the school illustrate their creative talents. Through their hard work, many of our campaigns were successfully advertised. One of the most important functions of this group is to inform people of the dangers of pollution, and this year they have done a fantastic job. Janis Giannantonio is the chairwoman and the members of her committee are: Janet Yates, Josephine Bottari, Lorraine Pini, Lorraine Parisi, Christine Hall, Deborah Griffen, and Charlene Follett.

The Research Committee, headed by Richard Coogan, has members working on several projects. A chemical analysis was done on the Malden River, and bacterial research was done on various other nearby waterways. These two projects came in first and second in this year's Science Fair. Various other projects are being conducted by these students. The members of the committee include: Peter Smith, Steve Lombardi, Robert Gallant, Gene Giacobbe, and David Segal.

The editorial staff is involved in letting the public know, through the newspapers, what the AEPC is doing and also how the citizens can help. A newsletter is being printed, entitled YAFEE or Young Adults for Environment and Ecology. This paper is entirely concerned with projects and stories about pollution. The editor is Donna Wetmore, her assistant editor is Karen Sheppard, and also working with the paper is Diane Mucciarone. The whole AEPC contributes the articles for this paper.

Judy Fonzi handles the Public Relations for the AEPC. She also organizes field trips for the group. The officers of the Committee are Larry Seely, President, Peter Smith, Vice-President; and Andrea Grout, Secretary Treasurer.

Although the AEPC is divided into sub-committees, the entire group cooperates in group projects. These projects are often for the good of the community such as the clean-up campaign and the Earth Day show which was written and performed entirely by the AEPC members. All members also aided in the Recycling Project. By working together these students have accomplished much to be talked about for years to come.

CRIMSON TIDE WINS 1971-72 GREATER BOSTON LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

In the non-league opener against Newton, Everett ended up on the bottom of a 6-0 contest. The loss was a tough one because it was the first game of the season, but the Everett nine came back harder and harder each game to finally end up in the top spot of the G.B.L.

This year's EHS team, after three years of developing into a hardnosed squad, proved to everybody that the city of Everett is still the "The City of Champions".

Against Somerville, senior quarterback Frank Venuto rifled two touchdown passes and Frank Nuzzo ran for a pair of scores as Everett swamped Somerville 42-14. This brought Everett's record 1-1, after the loss to Newton.

Ventuo's first TD pass was to senior halfback John Romboli, who then ran 35 yards for the score.

John Capra and Frank Russo also had scores, rushing from six and nine yards respectively.

Half back Frank Nuzzo scored two TD's in the fourth quarter to spark Everett's 20-8 victory over Quincy. Quincy took the lead 8-6 in the third quarter on a 50 yard pass play by the Quincy quarterback and his receiver Dave Coull.

John Romboli, who ran for 66 yards in 13 carries, and John Capra, who carried 10 times for 40 yards, also carried Everett to victory over Quincy. The E.H.S. team had a 6-0 lead at halftime after a six yard scamper by Romboli.

In a 26-12 defeat over Medford, Everett demolished Kevin Cunniff and the Medford Mustangs. The tough Everett defense held the mustangs to only three second quarter first downs, two on penalties. Cunniff was allowed to just four yards in six carries.

The Crimson Tide took over the top spot in the GBL behind the power running of senior John Romboli and speedster Frank Nuzzo. Romboli chewed up 87 yards up the middle on 18 carries and one touchdown, while Nuzzo busted for 101 yards and three touchdowns in 21 tries.

The eleventh annual Manganaro Trophy was awarded during the Medford game to the outstanding EHS lineman. The trophy was awarded to Captain Steve Anzalone, who led the Tide to victory and GBL crown.

Against North Quincy, senior full-back John Romboli finished up as top rusher and also put on a stupendous exhibition of punting, as the Everett team posted a 14-8 victory at North Quincy's Veteran Stadium.

Romboli averaged 47.5 yards per punt on 5 punts, enabling Everett to maintain excellent field position throughout the game.

Everett, 4-0-1 since losing the opener to Newton, did not play its best game, according to Coach Sarno.

Aided by a few costly Everett penalties, Beverly made a third quarter touchdown and a two point conversion for a 16-14 non-league upset over Everett.

Nick Fiandaca threw two TD passes to Frank Nuzzo to lead 14-8 in the second half, but a major penalty against Everett put them in a punting situation.

Despite a jarring tackle by Everett's John Capra, Beverly's Bob Connolly caught a TD pass in the end zone for the winning points.

In another outstanding punting exhibition by John Romboli, Everett beat Malden 14-12. Romboli's punts of 47, 59, 57, 37, and 50 yards kept Malden fighting for position all the way.

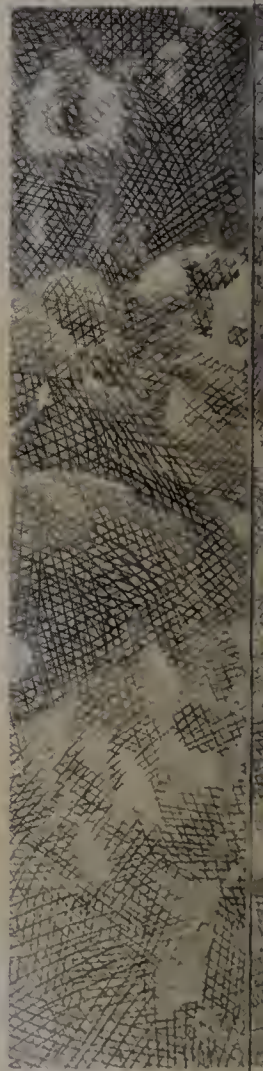

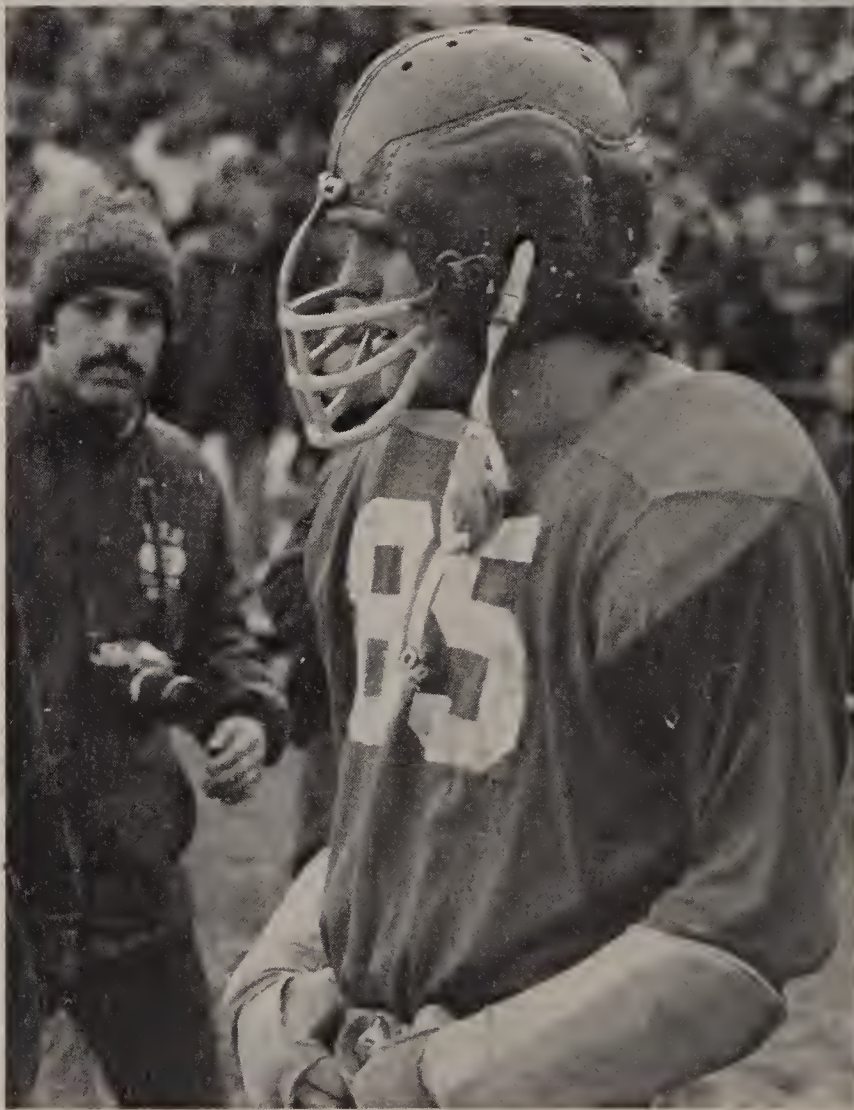

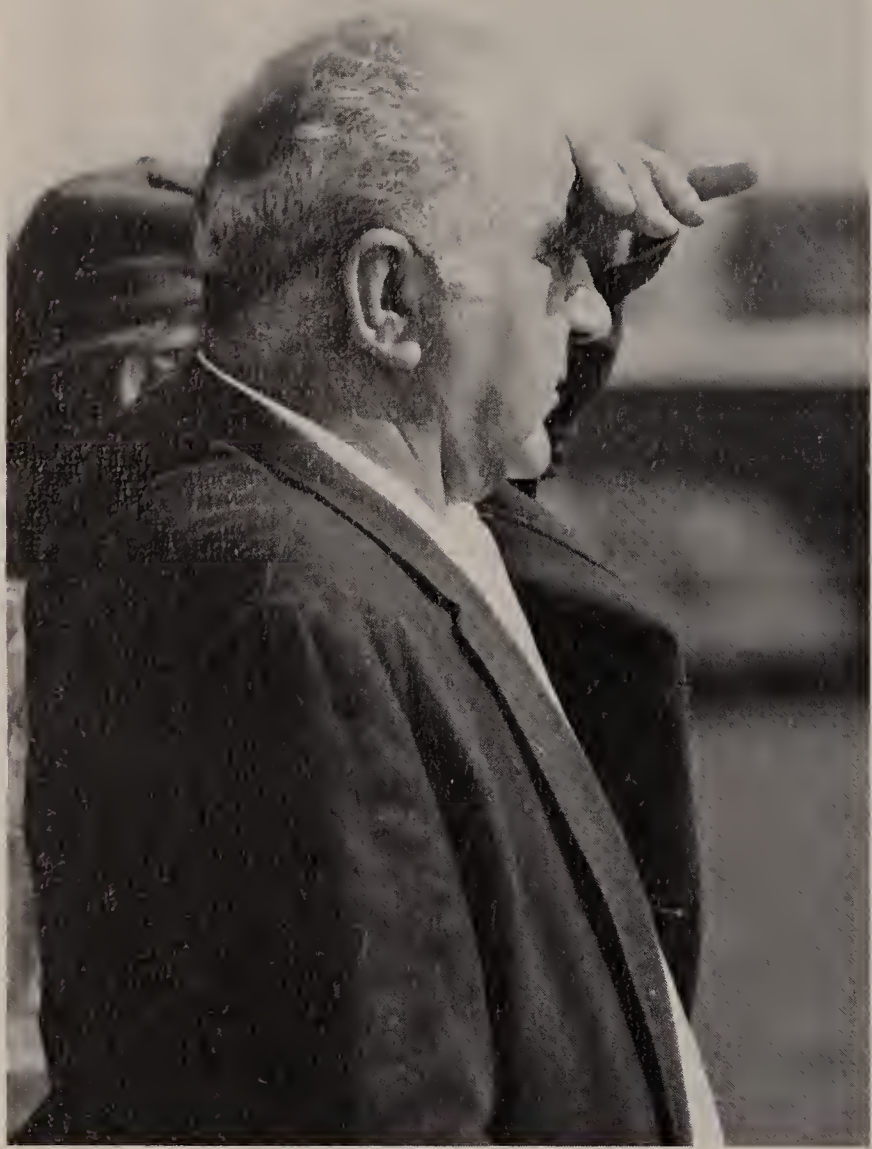

Nick Fiandaca's conversion pass to senior end Kevin Green provided the winning points. Malden went ahead midway in the third quarter, taking over on the Everett 39 and going the distance in six plays with Byrne throwing 29 yards to Bob Harrison for the score.

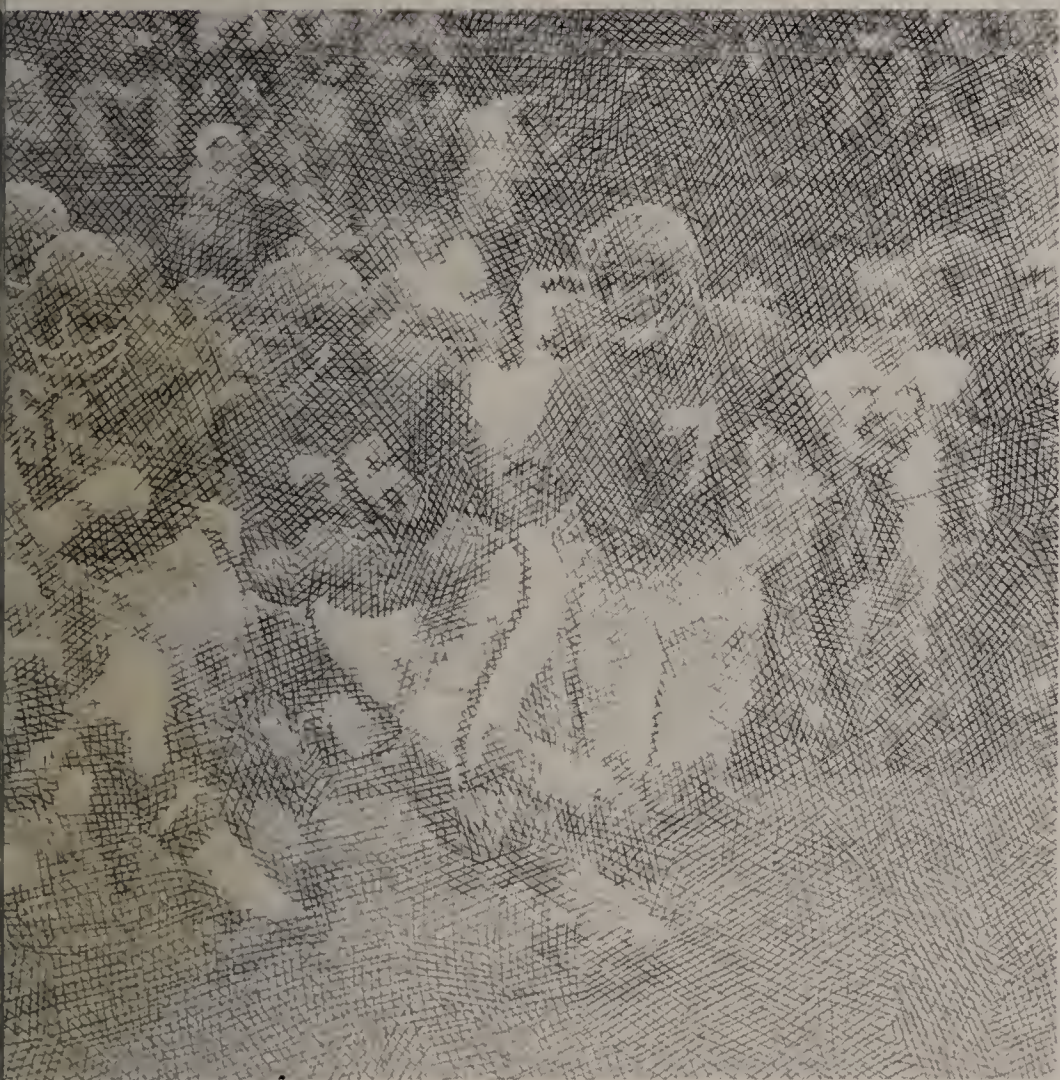

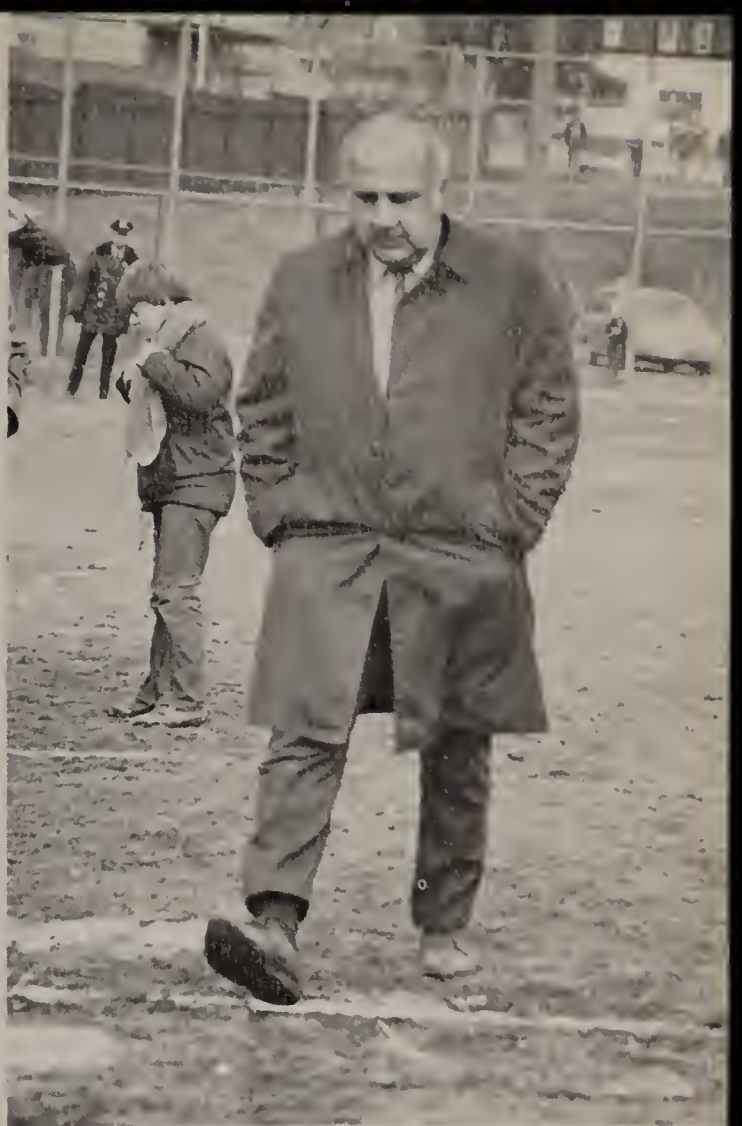

Three plays into the final quarter, Romboli bulled his way into the end zone from three yards out for the tying touchdown. Fiandaca then hit Kevin Green in the end zone for the winning points.

Everett finished up the year with a defeat over Chelsea 43-0 in the annual Thanksgiving Turkey game.

The Crimson Tide showed the spirit that truly is Everett High School and wound up GBL Champs for the 1971-72 season.

Kevin McGlaughlin, high scoring guard for the Crimson hoopsters, was voted MVP by the GBL coaches at a dinner-meeting. He was also named to play on the state all-star team, and also to the first team of the Record American All star team.

He also received many offers from colleges around the country, including a full scholarship to Harvard, where he will attend in September.

Under the superb guidance of Coach Pisacreta, and the fabulous talents of guard Kevin McGlaughlin, the Everett High School Basketball team marched to the Tech Tourney with a successful 13 and 7 season's record.

Although they had a great season, two games stand out as the highpoints. The first was the 63 - 58 upset of Somerville. McGlaughlin led the way hitting 11 for 18 from the floor, plus 5 of 6 free throws for 27 points. Co-captain Steve Anzalone ended up with 14 points and Keith Stallbaum with 12. Co-captain Jim Driscoll led the team in assists with 8. Center John Gordon, forward Jim Penta, and guard Arnie Heavey were also instrumental in that upset.

Senior John Gordon was Everett's most underrated player, in the opinion of coach Pisacreta. He filled in for both center and forward when injuries were a problem. He was tied for shooting with McGlaughlin and Penta with a total of 58 of 118 shots for 50%.

Center Tom Allston, who was plagued with injuries, was out most of the season; otherwise he might have increased the scoring power of Everett.

Coach Pisacreta is looking forward to another fine season, and hopefully a first place trophy for the Everett hoop stars.

Senior Jim Driscoll was Everett's leading playmaker. He led the team in assists with 138 for an average of 6 per game.

Senior Steve Anzalone was Everett's second leading scorer with an 11 point average. He had an average of 7 rebounds per game.

Junior forward Jim Penta led the team in free throws with a total of 45 of 54 for an outstanding average of 83%.

Senior Kevin McGlaughlin was Everett's leading scorer with a 24 point average. He hit on 197 out of 397 shots for 50% plus 91 out of 121 free throws for 75%. McGlaughlin also led in rebounds with an average of 4 per game. Kevin was named the Most Valuable Player by the Greater Boston League Coaches, and also to the State All-Star Team.

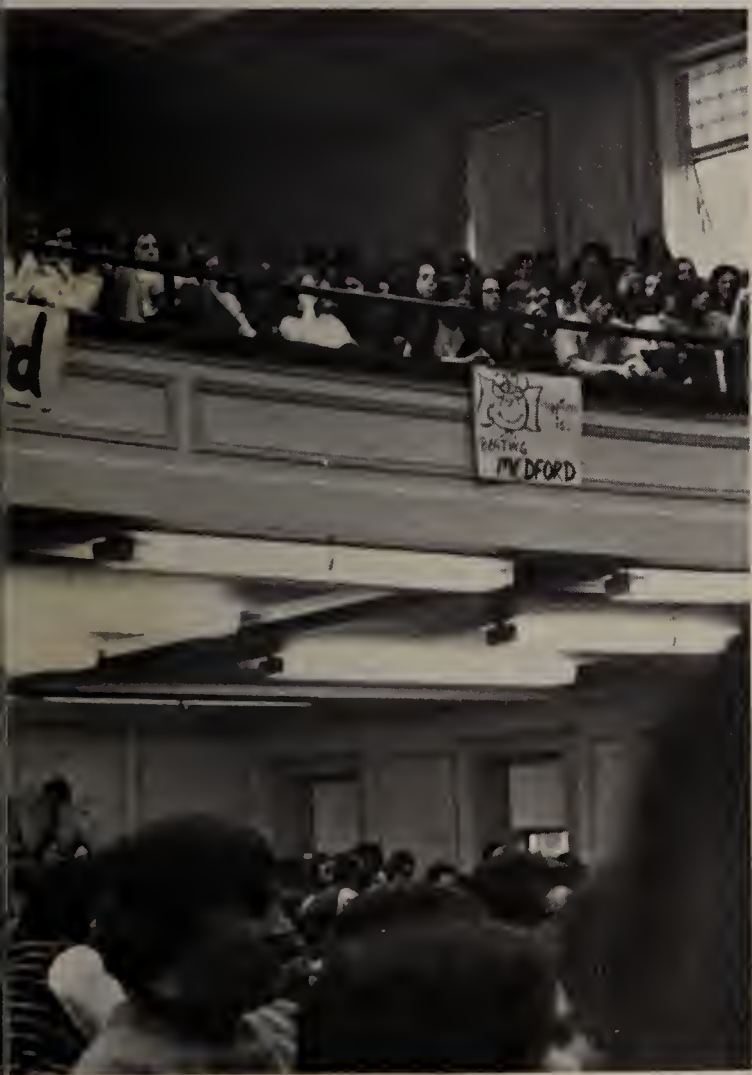

The other game was the last of the season against Arlington. It was to determine whether or not the Everett team would enter the Tech Tourney. The Tide came through with a victory, 62-51. Unfortunately, however, Everett was eliminated by Concord Carlisle 67-54 in the first game of the Tech Tourney at the Boston Garden.

E.H.S. 1971-72 HOCKEY

HEAD COACH: Larry Tuck
 ASSISTANT: Bill Berglumb and Tom Gibson
 CO-CAPTAINS: Steve Morganto and Dennis Vautour
 STUDENT MANAGERS: Dave Amoroso and Tom Doherty

The season began with a 3-2 win over Somerville. This ignited the spark, and the Crimson Tide rolled on to win it's next four games. The momentum was snapped briefly, however, with a loss to Revere; but Everett returned with two more victories. The tide won six of their remaining twelve games, giving them a record of 13 wins and 7 losses.

The leading Crimson scorer was forward Kevin Barry. He racked up 10 goals and 12 assists for 22 points. The top goalgetter was senior forward Joe LaBella. He lit the lamp 13 times, and has 8 assists for 21 points. First on the assist list was co-captain Dennis Vautour with 13. The Everett Goaltender, senior Ron Luongo, had a fantastic season. He shut-out his opponents 7 times during the season, and let up a total of 33 goals for a 1.5 goals against average.

Because of graduation, the team will lost the services of that great checking line of co-captain Steve Morganto, Steve Roy, and Larry Kelliher. Other graduating players will be Co-Captain Dennis Vautour, goalies Ron Luongo and Steve Busby, forward Joe LaBella, defenseman Gary D'Avolio, and Bob Hanson.

Coach Tuck is depending upon the returning players and the freshmen to aid him in another successful season. We are all confident that he will succeed and take the Tide to a GBL championship.

Pitcher and shortstop Ronnie Louongo has proven to be the spark for this year's Crimson team; showing strength at bat, as well as on the field and on the mound.

Mark Jagiello, another of Everett's hurlers, is one more of Coach Cecere's hopefuls for the 1972 season.

E.H.S. NINE SPLITS FOUR GAMES

The defending GBL Crimson Nine Champions got off to a slow start this season. The first two games resulted in losses. Medford defeated the local game nine 11 to 7 in the opening game. In a 16 inning, 6 hour marathon at Quincy, the Crimson Tide bowed 9 to 8.

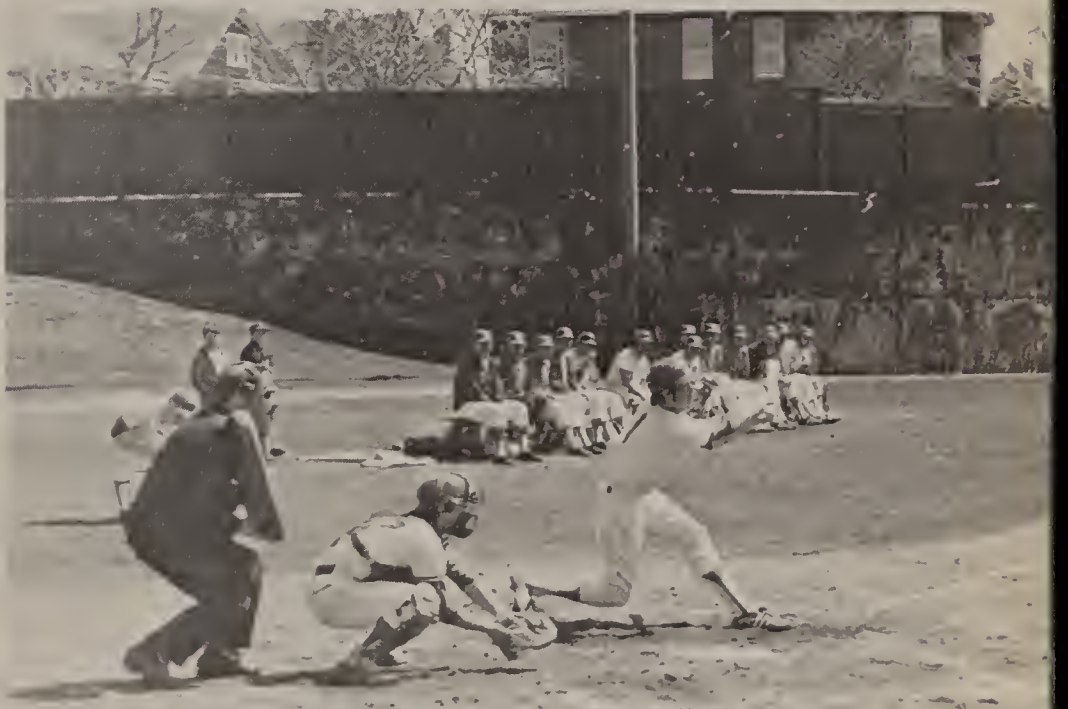

Against Revere in game three, the local high schoolers had their hitting shoes on. There were a total of four home runs, by Frank Russo, John Capra, John Romboli, and Ron Luongo hitting for the circuit. Junior John Pessela was the winning hurler with a 3 hit performance. The final score was 8 to 3.

In these three games the Crimson hurlers issued a total of 31 walks and the fielders committed a total of 15 errors. These performances cannot produce championship teams. Co-captains Romboli and Capra promise a change in this type of play.

The second victory came at the expense of Malden. In an excellent pitching duel, Ron Luongo with 17 strikeouts bested Malden's Dave Caizzo who struck out 20. The score was 2 to 0 in favor of Everett, with Luongo allowing 2 hits and Caizzo 7.
